Research Handbook on European Union Taxation Law

Research Handbooks in European Law series

Edited by Christiana HJI Panayi, Professor of Tax Law, Queen Mary University of London, UK, Werner Haslechner, Professor of Law, ATOZ Chair for European and International Taxation, University of Luxembourg, Luxembourg and Edoardo Traversa, Professor of Tax Law, Faculty of Law and Criminology, School of European Studies of the Université Catholique de Louvain (UCLouvain), Belgium

Offering a comprehensive exploration of EU taxation law, this engaging Research Handbook investigates the associated legal principles in the context of both direct and indirect taxation. The important issues and debates arising from these general principles are expertly unpicked, with leading scholars examining the status quo as well as setting out a clear agenda for future research.

'The editors and authors of this Research Handbook on European Union Taxation Law, really did a great job in outlining the key issues for research in this area: seminal topics such as general principles, free movement and tax harmonisation are presented in a way that enables scholars and practitioners to quickly find the main materials and approaches in this rapidly growing field of transnational law. This is certainly a great tool, also considering that each chapter is beautifully prepared by a top notch specialist, often with very valuable insider views, in particular about future perspectives, such as tax competition, administrative cooperation and the external EU tax policies. I strongly recommend the book.'

– Carlo Garbarino, Bocconi University, Italy and Melbourne Law School, Australia

'This Research Handbook provides an excellent collection of essays on some of the most fundamental topics in EU tax law. I am certain it will become a reference, not only for those carrying out research in this area, but for students, and practitioners alike.'

– Rita de la Feria, University of Leeds, UK
